DETAILED DESCRIPTION

People who fit the Creative profile present opposing forces in their behavior. Your desire for tangible results is balanced by your constant search for perfection, and your aggressiveness by your sensitivity. Even though Creatives think and react quickly, they are held back by the desire to explore all alternatives before making a decision. Creatives are visionaries when working on a project, and want to bring change with the results they achieve. Since people with the Creative profile have a desire for perfection - including good planning skills - the results of their projects are great. On the other hand, the methodology adopted leaves interpersonal relationships aside. Creatives want the freedom to explore and the authority to implement whatever they see fit. It is easy to make small decisions, but difficult to make decisions with a long-term effect. Creatives in general do not care about their posture in public, and can be perceived as cold, distant and calculating people.
